Product Description

- Customers who lose or damage their original Mifo O5 case render their earbuds virtually useless. They need an urgent replacement, and you have the direct solution.
- A customer with a broken or missing charging case is looking to fix an immediate problem. Having it on your shelf turns a panicked shopper into a fast, thirty second checkout.
- Stocking core accessories signals that you understand your customer's long term needs. Carrying the case tells buyers they are in the right place for both the initial purchase and future support.
- This serves as a natural point of sale mention for every new earbud sale. Letting a buyer know you carry standalone replacement cases plants the seed for them to return to you if accidents happen.
- Online retailers make accessories difficult to find and slow to ship. Carrying it in your physical store wins over every local customer who needs their audio fixed this week rather than next week.
